Fine Orange Orchard.

A Herald reporter today, by the courtesy of Mr. A. B. Shearer, visited his handsome little home place on Prescott road, a mile north of town, where was found an abundance of evidence going far toward settling the question of orange raising in this part of the country. Mr. Shearer has in about 220 orange trees of several varieties now about a year and a half from setting out. Some of the orange trees have made a growth of three and a half to four feet so far this season and all are of fine, healthy color, with large leaves and areas fine a sight in tree growing as the most fastidious orchardist could wish. The trees passed last winter without as much as losing a twig and are now hardy and covered by a fine foliage that insures their future. Between the rows of oranges Mr. Shearer has planted rows of other fruit trees, to be removed on the growth of the orange trees to good size, so that the two acres he now has in fruit will ultimately be a fine orange orchard. Mr. Shearer is a veteran orchardist and nurseryman, and is enthusiastic in the exercise of his leisure hours among his trees. Two or three years more will make one of the finest homes for him to be found in Arizona. —Phoenix Herald.

Do you want to have roast duck for dinner? Go to the Can Can.

Casa Grande was visited a few days since with quite a lusty cyclone which did considerable damage. Arizona seems to have celebrated the equinox quite generally.

William Kirlew and the Walsh brothers returned last night from their hunting trip loaded down with duck and quail. Kirlew sprained his ankle quite severely, but no other accident occurred.

What's the matter with the Territorial Fair Association offering a suitable purse for a horse race? Tombstone has a horse company which would be willing to enter the contest if a sufficient sum was guaranteed.

Some men try advertising as the Indian tried feathers. He took one feather, laid it on the board and slept on it all night. In the morning he remarked: "White man say feathers heap soft; white man — fool." —Ex.

The Western sky presented an unusual sight last evening. The atmosphere was extremely hazy and the sun appeared like a dark red ball clearly outlined against a leaden colored background. Old timers predict either an earthquake or a severe storm.

If the statehood agitation in Idaho has been the cause of producing six children at one time, so much better reason why the Arizona agitation should continue. We might be able to record a case of "twelvelets."

Eloquent Ingersoll.

Robert G. Ingersoll the great agnostic, closed his famous oration at the funeral of his friend, Horace Seaver, August 26th with the following beautiful words:

But he has lived his life. We should shed no tears of gratitude. We should rejoice that he lived so long. In nature's course his time had come, the four seasons were complete in him. The spring could never come again. He had taken life's seven steps; the measure of his years was full. When the work of a life is finished, when the gold of evening meets the dusk of night, beneath the silent stars the tired laborer should fall asleep. To outlive usefulness is a double death. When the old oak is visited in vain by spring, when light and rain no longer thrill, it is not well to stand leafless, desolate and alone. It is better far to fall where nature softly covers all with woven mosses and creepers. How little, after all, we know of what is ill or well. How little of this wondrous stream of cataclysms and pools, this stream of life that rises in a world unknown and flows to that mysterious sea whose shore the foot of one who comes hath never pressed. How little of this we know, this struggling ray of light twixt gloom; this strip of land verdure-clad, between the unknown wastes; this throbbing moment filled with love and pain; this dream that lies between the shadowy shores of sleep and death. We stand upon this verge of crumbling time. We love, we hope, we disappear. Again we mingle with the dust and the "knot intricate" forever falls apart. But this we know: a noble life enriches all the world. Horace Seaver lived for others; he accepted toil and hope deferred. Poverty was his portion. Like Socrates he did not seek to adorn his body, but rather his soul, with the jewels of charity, modesty, courage, and above all, with a love of liberty.

Farewell, O brave and modest man! Your lips, between which truth burst into blossom, are forever closed. Your loving heart has ceased to beat, your busy brain is still, and from your hand has dropped the sacred torch. Your noble, self-denying life has honored us and we will honor you. You were my friend and I was yours. Above your silent clay I pay this tribute to your worth. Farewell!

George Walker, of the firm of Stevenson & Walker, of this city, writes that the treatment of his eye is proving successful and he is confident of completely regaining the sight of his eye. One of his eyes has been blind since boyhood, and the other was beginning to suffer in sympathy, hence his trip to San Francisco. He expects to be able to return the latter part of next month.

The railroad rates from Deming, New Mexico, to Washington, D. C., and return is $56.15. Tickets will be on sale the 1st, 2d and 3d of next month, inclusive. Parties must leave Deming on the 3d, and tickets call for a continuous passage. The above rates are for the benefit of the Knights Templar convalesce to be held at Washington.

Freighter Jim Black and son are in town for a stock of supplies for the Congress mine. Affairs there are said to be booming. One hundred and thirty men are employed and over $800 daily is paid for labor and running expenses. —Phoenix Herald.

And now comes a story from Wyoming that a child was recently born on the La Boute with a full set of teeth and its fingers strongly resembling claws. There must be something peculiar about the atmosphere of the north. A few days ago a lady living in Malad City, Idaho, gave birth to sixlets, and Idaho and Wyoming join.

The O'Sullivan's are coming. There are twenty-seven of them in the family—father, mother and twenty-five sons and daughters. Nora O'Sullivan, the youngest member of the family, a flaxen haired miss of fifteen years, was at the Mission of Our Lady of the Rosary at Castle Garden the other day. She informed Rev. Father Callihan that she had left her father, mother, thirteen sisters and eleven brothers in County Kerry, Ireland. Nora said further that two of her brothers were twins and three of the sisters were triplets. She hopes to see the whole family in the United States early next spring. She is the advance agent, as it were, of the great attraction.

There was a terrible epidemic of dysentery and bloody flux in Pope County, Illinois, last summer. As many as five deaths occurred in one day. Messrs. Walter Brothers, of Waltersburg, sold over 350 bottles of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy during this epidemic and says they never heard of its failing in any case when the directions were followed. It was the only medicine used that did cure the worst cases. Many persons were cured by it after the doctors had given them up. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by H. J. Peto.

Mr. Moore, the Post Master at Bradshaw, Va., after reading an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy, concluded to try a small bottle of it. He says: "I used it in two cases for colic and three for diarrhea with perfect satisfaction. One dose gave relief in every case but one, that was a bad case of colic and required the second dose. I have handled a great deal of patent medicine as agent and for my own use, but never tried any that gave as good results as Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy." For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by H. J. Peto.

Cholera in Michigan.

Dr. F. D. Larke, of Rogers City, Michigan, says the epidemic of last year in Presque Isle County, in which so many persons lost their lives, was choleric dysentery instead of cholera as first reported. He used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy and says it succeeded, where all other remedies failed. Not a single case was lost in which it was used. This Remedy is the most reliable and most successful medicine known for colic, cholera morbus, dysentery, diarrhea and bloody flux. 25 and 50 cents bottle for sale by H. J. Peto.
